How to preserve your family history and have fun, too

Gina Newman will teach beginners how to explore their ancestry and show everyone how to use old photos and records to make family trees and albums. The demonstration will be held at the Lacey Timberland Library on Saturday, August 14 from 3 to 4 p.m. Bring photos, family papers and questions.

The class is free of charge. Participants will be given a checklist for discovering family history, organizing the findings, and accessing resources for deeper family research. The program is recommended for parents with children, adults and seniors.

Ms. Newman is a graphic artist and a volunteer who loves working with seniors. She has restored several thousand photos.

The Lacey library is at 500 College Street SE. For more information, call (360) 491-3860 or go to www.TRL.org.
